THE VISIBLE SUPPLY.

What Has Continued to Ease-Small Decrease in That Store and About the same price.

Tuesday Evening Aug. 2.

The speculative wheat market in Chicago today exhibited marked inactivity, but, despite the depressing effect of the above, the market was still active, and advanced from 5¢ to 10¢ per bushel. The August article closed at 60¢, the top point of the day, while the September article closed up the session 3¢ less and 4¢, respectively, above yesterday's final figures. Returns were still favorable, while wheat stocks and damage to crop in some foreign countries, are considered bullish in this regard.

The sentiment of the Liverpool Board has changed little over the weekend. Spelt is still firm, and the market shows that Friday's last quotations, while future deliveries are still higher. Paris wheat is lower to-day than yesterday.

A North and West Ontario points new wheat offering freely at 60¢, and, with old wheat, 5¢ to 10¢ per bushel at that figure, dealers say they are unable to pay over 60¢ for it.

FACTS ABOUT HEALTH

It is Easy to Keep Well if We Know How—Some of the Conditions Necessary to Perfect Health.

The importance of maintaining good health is easily understood, and it is really a simple matter if we take a correct view of the conditions required. In perfect health the stomach properly digests the food taken by the neighborhood. The blood is employed to carry this nourishment to the organs, nerves, muscles and tissues which need it. The first great essential for good health, therefore, is pure, rich blood. Now it is certainly a fact that no medicine has such a record of cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is literally true that there are hundreds of people alive and well who would have been dead or graves had they not taken Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is depended upon in a family medicine and general regulator of the system by tens of thousands of people. This is because Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure. This is the secret of its great success. Keep your system in good health by keeping your blood in good condition, and you will absolutely cure what other medicines fail to do any good whatever.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

GLADSTONE AND MOSES.

A correspondent of The British Weekly writes: "A sad story relating to Mr. Gladstone. — I was driving one autumn evening in a conveyance which in those days used to run from Lamash to King's Cross (Island of Arran) when I found an American boat had run aground near Whiting bay. Sitting opposite me were two men who appeared to belong to the Paisley weaver class, and true to the traditions of that class they were busy in their politico-religious discussions. One of them said, with much emphasis: 'There hasn't been a lawgiver equal to Mr. Gladstone since the days of Moses!' retorted the other: 'Moses got the law gien tae him frae the Lord, but Mr. Gladstone maks laws oot o' his ain head!'

It entered the house of Samuel Ball, tore apart the kitchen and stuck Mrs. Ball, tearing her shoes and stockings. A brother who slept on the bottom of the bed, a black spot on the bottom of one foot. Mr. Ball was shocked, but not injured.

Burdock Pills do not gripe or sicken. They cure Constipation and sick Head-ache.

From 61 bushels of winter wheat sown, John A. Sprague of Big Island harvested 200 bushels of excellent quality, being over 45 bushels per acre of land on which this yield was produced was in '93 so unproductive that only a coarse sort of grass could be grown. In that year Mr. Sprague had 35 bushels of the grain sown upon it. It was then sown, fallowed and sown to oats and other spring crops in with large results. In the first week of September last year it was sown to winter wheat with the result named. So much for tile draining and thorough culture.

Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all Lung Troubles and quickly cured by Haygard's Pectoral Balsam.

LAST YEAR'S CROP VERY LARGE.

Statistics just compiled show that Manitoba and the Northwest territories produced more wheat last year than was generally supposed. Up to a few days ago, eighteen and a half bushels of wheat—four included—had passed through Winnipeg on the C. P. R., since the crop began to move. Two millions were held by the Northern Pacific, four millions held by farmers for seed, etc., and milling companies now hold one million in stock, so that the total was between 25,000,000 and 26,000,000 bushels.

THE EXPERIENCE OF MR. RALPH BERNSON, WHO SUFFERED GREATLY FROM GENERAL DEBILITY.

Ralph Griffin, of Port Hope, at Mont-gomery's corner, Co. N. B., is known as a prosperous agriculturist and an ardent enthusiast in life. Now stalwart and rugged, weighing 250 pounds, he scarce would be recognized as the same man who, a month ago, he pictured the one suffering the terrible symptoms of general debility. He was run down in health, suffered much from languor and sadness, and depression of spirits. He had a poor appetite and such food as he ate gave him great distress. He was incapacitated for the work that fell upon him and was compelled to remain at home, the symptoms bordering on those by which hypochondria is manifested. Through reading the Advertiser he learned of the particular benefit that some of his friends in the medical field had received by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He had the hope held out by their testimonies,
he secured a supply and took them according to directions. The result was gratifying, the symptoms lessened and agreeable, and he steadily gained until now he is perfectly free from his old troubles. He gladly and freely gives this testimony, that all who may read it may know the remedy if ever they are troubled with general debility.

Mr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the disease. They renew and build up the blood, and strengthen the muscle, removing diseased parts of the system.

The genuine may be had in boxes, the wrapper around which bears the full trademark, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

THE SAILOR OF OLD TIMES.

Sailors in olden days must have been sheepish in palaces. It is true that when that man made salt from the Thames he was not afraid to make rations of salt water. The capacity I refer to is the capacity of enduring the hindrance of light headwinds, the abortive struggles of the precious round bow driven through it dead to leeward, with the young and old sailors, the long, laborious voyages when the fresh water stank, when the ship's bread crawled on the toes of the innumerable sea-worm that dieth not, when the scurvy was clapping the grinning mask of anguish and death upon your shipmate's face, and when you looked out upon the sea-snakes revolved in wheels of fire, and you saw things with the eyes of Coleridge's Ancient Mariner.
But those seamen who thus endured were all the men who mastered
the flag of our country. Honest Honesty!

It would be absurd to say that we shall not look upon them again like again. They are with us in their children. But I say, hat in hand with deepest reverence, when I think of their ships, their slender equipment, the unknown measureless seas of those ages, that the sailor of old times was a man! — Clark Russell, in Pall Mall Magazine

HER HONEYMOON.

Celia is strong minded. You would not think so to look at her. She is what I call a fluffy girl. She has a sweet face, with large blue eyes and a matchless dimple in her left cheek. But Celia is strong minded. I sometimes even think mamma is a little afraid of her. She has certainly managed us both all her life. Celia has a perfect talent for managing people. When she told us she was engaged to be married to Sir Vernon Bransome, mamma said, “But, Celia, darling, you hardly know him.”

“You don’t know any mistakes you’re actually making him,” I answered Celia, who is possessed of an extraordinary amount of worldly wisdom.

Then I put in my word. “I don’t like him, Celia,” I said decidedly.

“And you haven’t got to marry him,” replied Celia, in her most putting down manner, “so you needn’t trouble about that.”

Mamma cried a little and finally gave her consent, which was, after all, only a matter of form, as Celia has money of her own and is over 21.

She was getting over the hump the night before the marriage. “Supposing he is unkink to you, Celia,” I said.

“Oh, Celia, darling, whatever would you do if he were unkink to you?”

“Do?” answered Celia, with an air of great astonishment. “I should leave him, of course, and come back to you and mamma.”

I gasped. “You couldn’t leave a man you were married to,” I said.

“Couldn’t I?” she replied calmly.

“I’m afraid he is rather selfish, Celia,” I said presently.

“All men are selfish,” replied the wife Celia, “but I’m not so easily encouraged. I’m not encourage Vernon.”

Then we went to bed.

I awoke the next morning feeling depressed. I hated parting with my favorite sister, and I did not care about my future brother-in-law. I must own he seemed devoted to Celia, but he looked so rough and big beside her I was dreadfully afraid he might bully her. But the wedding went off very well, in spite of my misgivings. My sister looked deliciously pretty in white in Santa Siva gown, and I thought Vernon looked proud and happy. A friend of his had lent them a boat to sail for their honeymoon, and Vernon was to have some spring fishing. I sent a telegram off at the station. This was, I knew, a dreadfully unconventional thing to do, but it was just like Celia, and she insisted on it. She said it would prevent people from knowing they were newly married, which was absurd, as her hat was covered with rice.

Just before the train was due to start Vernon looked at his watch and said to me, “Well, goodness, Dot. I must be getting in now.” I shook hand with him and Celia, leaning forward, moved the Ladies’orial from the seat opposite. He sat there silent.

“Don’t be too hasty to move anything, Celia,” he said genially. “I’m going smoking.” I stared incredulously at him; then I placed at Celia to see how she would take it. To my surprise, she only smiled and said: “All right. Go and tell Denise to come to me a minute. I want to speak to her.”

He went off in a hurry for her maid, who came up just as the train was starting. “Here, jump in, Denise. I want to speak to you,” cried Celia. “I can pay the extra on your ticket at the other end.”

Denise was bunched in, and the train started without my having time to exchange another word with my sister.

I stood waving my hand until it was nearly out of sight, although Celia did not look once out of the window; then I turned away, feeling disconsolate.

I felt furiously angry with Vernon. How hateful of him to go smoking and leave Celia to travel by herself just when she had been trying to talk over the wedding and everything! How lonely she would be on that long cold winter journey! They were going to stop at York for the night, but she would have nearly four hours alone with her maid.

Poor Celia! I had warned her he was selfish, but it is no use warning people who are in love—they are always so peculiar. I felt a little disappointed in myself to tell the truth, for I never thought Vernon could have surrendered so easily. She hadn’t even looked cross, but had smiled at Vernon.

How dreadfully soon marriage changes some people! I found mamma still rather watery about the eyes. She asked me a great many questions and was most indignant at Vernon’s selfishness.

“Fancy slighting my darling girl like that!” she said angrily.

“And fancy her taking it so calmly,” I added.

“I wish she had never left us,” sobbed mamma. “I know he will bully her. I never heard of a man doing such a thing in my life. My poor, neglected child!”

We could talk and think of nothing else, and sat down to dinner feeling lonely and miserable. At about half past 9, as I was feeling quite worn out with excitement and fatigue, I thought I would go to bed. I kissed mamma and begged her not to worry about Celia.

“I wonder what she is doing?” she said thoughtfully. “Do I hope they will not quarrel, Dot?”

I said I was sure they wouldn’t, as Celia had never quarreled with anybody in her life. I was just going up stairs when I heard the front door bell ring violently.

“I can’t see any one, Dot,” mamma called out to me. “I am too tired and upset tonight.”

“We’re out, James,” I said to the footman, and added reassuringly to mamma, “It will only be what Celia calls a posthumous wedding present.”

I waited a moment to see. Suddenly I heard a peremptory voice saying:

“Here, James, take in this box. Denise is here to see you. I’ll be right over in a four-wheel.”

“Mama! There’s no Christianity there!”

HOW TO KEEP GOLDFISH.

A Few Necessary Rules for Preserving the Pretty Water Pets.

It is remarkable how seldom people are able to keep goldfish for more than a week, and this is due to the fact that most people are not familiar with the care of fish.

Goldfish should be kept almost any length of time, provided you take care of them.

One can usually tell when the fish are needing water. They stand up on the water, with their mouths open, and the water is drawn into their gills.

When you put the fresh water into the globe, let it stand in a height, so that plenty of air gets in, too, and let your fish swim about in the water.

When you put the fish into the water, they will swim about among the plants of food, and it gives them something to do and a little interest in life.

People frequently make the mistake of thinking the fish get along fine out of the water, but this is not true, and it is not even safe to keep them out for a short time.

When you put the fish into the water, they will not be able to swim about in the water, and they will drown.

RAMMING A WARSHIP

A CRASH THAT RIPS HER OPEN BELOW THE WATER LINE.

The Impact Tears a Gaping Hole in the Hull Through Which a Team of Horses Could be Dressed — The Awful Going Down of the Victim.

A feature of naval construction and warfare which attracted the attention of experts years ago and for a time was exceedingly popular is the ram. The idea of putting a short stout spar out into the stem of a ship to thrust into the hull of another ship to disable it has been known since the days of the Phoenicians. The Ram was used by the British navy in the 17th century, and was a very effective weapon.

Confederate ironclads Merriam bore

PARE IS CROSS-EXAMINED.

The Chief Crown Witness Under Fire the Whole Day.

Mr. Porter's Adroit Questioning Caused
Him to Get Tangled a Little at One or Two Points—Surprising Letter from
Pare to Ponton's Lawyer Warning Him
That Evil Persons Were Putting Up a Job on His Client.

Napanee, Aug. 4.—Lawyer Lyons of Belleville came into town last night. He registered at the Campbell House, but about 8 o'clock was driven up to Lawyer McRae's office. The trial of the witness that Pare gave the warning, particularly to which fact several of the citizens are prepared to swear.

The Jack Roach implicated in Paret's case is the son of a farmer living two miles west of Deseronto. The Roach family bear an unimpeachable character. Two of the sons were agents for the Rathbun Co., at important agencies in Belleville, having been engaged from time past a year or two ago with a farm estimated at about $25,000 or $30,000, and lived with his father in Belleville, in a quiet, unassuming way. That he has anything to do with the case passes the comprehension of the people here, who know the family and the son Jack Roach is now in California, looking after some mining interests. His father is daily an interested spectator of the proceedings at the Court House.

GREAT CROWD IN COURT.

Hundreds Turned Away—Pare on the Stand Most of the Day—His Lurid Career.

Promptly at 9:30 yesterday the court opened. The room was again crowded to excess, despite the sultry weather, and hundreds were turned away. The interest seems to be growing as the case proceeds. The people here are greatly interested.

Then Mr. Porter began the cross-examination of Pare, and Pare gave as his aliases Howard, Bellinger and Oldridge. He was born in St. Thomas, Que., 50 years ago, and had a common school education and learned a trade. He was a hotel-keeper in Montreal and after living in Detroit two years he returned to Montreal and fell into bad habits and for robbing a till he got three months in gaol. Then he drifted down to Quebec where he got seven years in St. Vincent prison for a safe.

In the Penitentiary.

Mr. Porter then took up the life of the man while at St. Vincent du Faust penitentiary. The first episode was when Pare caused an investigation, when he charged Deputy Warden Oulmet with accepting $25 as a bribe to assist two convicts in escape. Pare was indicted, but Oulmet was declared innocent as the man who had given an affidavit corroborating Pare's evidence could not be found, and after Pare had been in prison four years he had an interview with Detective Cullen of Montreal, and with Cullen he agreed to go to Thornhill on the Wednesday following my arrest. I told him she said the bills had come from me. I said that she said so when we met on the train. I walked into Chief Healey's office and questioned about the notes by Healey, Thornhill and O'Dowd. All sort of questions were asked me, and I knew they were trying to swear me. They kept me there for ten or fifteen minutes, but only Mr. Healey and myself. We got a ride to Thornhill on the Wednesday following my arrest. I was still in the police station. I had not been brought before any court.

Objected to Coming to Canada.

Thornhill asked me if I had any objection to going to Canada. I said I would not go until there were papers to draw upon. "Well, have you any papers?" said Thornhill. I pulled out my documents and read them to me. They said that my sister was being brought from Montreal, and that a couple more arrests were expected that day. He asked if I had anything to do with that. "I made no money on the bank robbery." I recited my story to my lawyer. He left. My lawyer told me what was against me, and told me what to do. He said there were three or four to be arrested and advised me to do the best I could for myself. Then I went to the police station and waited. The lawyer said, "You go to Healey's office and make a clean breast of it, you know, and will count your favor." I believed him and went to Healey. I felt that if I could do anything to help myself, I ought to do it. In such cases as this, the best thing to do is to tell the truth, the worst of it, so I thought it was time for me to do something for myself. My object in adopting this course was to benefit myself. I was not a bit sorry about committing the robbery; I only wanted to confess in Healey's Room.

I went to Healey's room. There were present Lawyer Davidson, for the Dominion Bank; Detectives Dougherty, Carpenter, Thornhill and Dennis F. O'Connor, not making a confession. It was not taken down in writing, I signed nothing, and that none of us went to Court. I knew every little detail of the trial last fall. I knew Mr. Ponton had been accused and discharged. I read only one small paragraph of the investigation. I am not sure about the robbery. I am not sure about the details of the robbery in the opinion of the scene of the robbery in laying the basis of a strong case against the testimony of certain Crown witnesses, notably young Haycock and Mrs. McCreary.

Amended Bank Plan.

Pare was not called immediately on the assembling of the court, but E. F. Miller, C. E., was put in the box, and produced an amended plan of the bank and the wharf, and the wharf engineer part of the plan, and gave many details. This flat roof just behind Ponton's room was shown to possess a gutter down which water flowed. The defense is going into the geography of the scene of the robbery in order to lay the basis of a strong case against the testimony of certain Crown witnesses, notably young Haycock and Mrs. McCreary.

Pare Again in the Box.

At this stage Pare came back to the box, and Mr. Porter's cross-examination continued. Detectives Dougherty, Carpenter, Thornhill and Dennis F. O'Connor, not making a confession. It was not taken down in writing, I signed nothing, and that none of us went to Court. I knew every little detail of the trial last fall. I knew Mr. Ponton had been accused and discharged. I read only one small paragraph of the investigation. I am not sure about the robbery. I am not sure about the details of the robbery in the opinion of the scene of the robbery in laying the basis of a strong case against the testimony of certain Crown witnesses, notably young Haycock and Mrs. McCreary.

"I just recall this fact now," said the prisoner. "I did not work there. My friends came up with me; that made five of us. The two got off at Cornwall, but Roach, Holden and I came right up to Kingston. Then Roach went to Belleville. I saw one of the men who got off at Cornwall after the bank robbery."

Mr. Porter's Clever Work.

One of the cleverest pieces of cross-examination ever worked in this country was played by Mr. Porter when he led out the test of Mr. Oldridge, the detective, will knock Pare's confession into a cocked hat. Mr. Porter said: "Now, Mr. Pare, I want you to give me a sample of your writing. Pare sat down at the arbitrators table, and wrote under Mr. Porter's dictation:

"Montreal, May 25, 1897.
Dear Sir—Honorable James Daly, Esq.
Gone Porter. I want you to connect with some sharpers, but I can't say much just now. Do you know Detective Wilkes and Dougherty? If I hear more I will try and let you know. Yours truly, George Pare, Old George of the Baseball Club."

"That will do," was Mr. Porter's non-committal remark, when Pare had finished.

The writing was somewhat cramped and a big blot disfigured the face of the page.

"Did you ever use that name, old George of the Baseball Club?"

"Yes, sir, I guess you know it."

(Laughter.)

"Is that your hand-writing, Mr. Pare?" showed him a letter. "That is your signature."

"Yes," replied the witness.

A stir was created when Mr. Porter produced a letter written by Pare, and asked him if he recognized the handwriting and date.

Pare said: "Yes, that is my writing."

Pare's Letter to Ponton's Lawyer.

Then Mr. Porter read the following letter, while the court listened with all of the eagles of attention:

Dear Sir—Deseronto, Ont., Oct. 26, 1897.

Hon. E. Gus Pare—Dear Sir—A conspiracy is forming here in Montreal against your client, Mr. Ponton, by some sharpers of evil repute well-known here.

They are waiting to connect with Detective Wilkes and Dougherty. If I find out more I will let you know. I remain,

sir, respectfully yours,

Old George of the Baseball Club."

The witness had given the warning to

Pare to Ponton's Lawyer warning him

that evil persons were putting up a job

on his client.

The court adjourned at 5 p.m. this morning at 9 o'clock.

CANADA'S DEFENCES.

Military Experts Arrive to Study the Conditions.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—The conference of Canadian Presidents in Peterborough last year failed to have at once one result of very great importance to the country. The Imperial sentiment which was so dominant at that time led to the interchange of opinions as to the condition of the empire, and as to the best method of combining for its own protection. It is as a result of that conference and of subsequent correspondence between Canada and the Imperial government that a committee is formed to study military experts to give their attention to the conditions of the Canadian army and offer general suggestions as to how the defences should be strengthened and our military forces increased, a fortifying of our fortifications at home and abroad. The outcome of the conference and negotiations has been the assembly of a committee of expert military men from all parts of the empire, who have arrived in Ottawa. They are Major General Leach, C. B., Royal Engineers; Captain White, R.N., and Colonel Lake, Quartermaster-General of Canada.

Monster Demonstration At Deseronto.

PRENTICE BOYS COMMEMORATE THE RELIEF OF DERRY.

On Friday, August 12th, a great demonstration was held in Deseronto, under the auspices of Victoria Lodge, No. 9, P. A. P. B., on the two hundred and ninth anniversary of the relief of Derry.

Some time ago a capital committee was appointed to make arrangements, comprising W. J. Foster, James Stokes, John Stevenson, Nicholas Sagar, with E. M. Wallbridge, as chairman, and Luman Foote, as secretary, to celebrate the relief of Derry. The 'Prentice Boys, Orangemen and kindred societies from all over the country and even from the United States were present to take part in the day's proceedings.

The 12th of August is a day of peculiar interest to 'Prentice Boys and Orangemen and it may not be amiss to say a word or two about Derry.

'Derry, the original name of Londonderry, is derived from Doire, the place of oaks. It owes its origin to the Normans, who founded it in 1613.

From the ninth to the eleventh century the town was frequently in the possession of the Danes, and was often burned and devastated, but they were finally driven from it by Murtagh O'Neill, King of Ulster.

Edward II sent Richard de Burgh to expel the Danes, and he succeeded in driving them out. In 1315 Edward II gave the town its charter.

After the Irish Society of London incorporated the town in 1613, it was known as Londonderry.

The fortifications which were begun 1600, were completed in 1613 at a cost of nearly £29,000 ($44,000).

It was garrisoned by 1000 men under Charles II. From April 18, 1689, the protestants of the north defended themselves within its walls against James II, until the 12th of August following, when the siege was raised. The population of Londonderry was over 30,000.

From an early hour in the morning large crowds of people thronged into town from the surrounding country.

By noon all the hotel stables and sheds were filled to overflowing. It is estimated that there were 10,000 persons in town from outside points.

The steamer Ella Ross brought a large excursion party from Napanee, followed by one from Picton on the Reindeer.

The steamer Merritt brought about five hundred passengers from Picton, the Pictoria Band being on board. The band, headed by Captain Tweddell and points on the Bay of Quinte railway arrived at 10:35 a.m.

The steamer Armenia with excursion parties from Trenton and Belleville added several hundred to the multitude, and the Columbian from Gananoque and Kingston.

The hotels were taxed to the utmost to provide meals for the crowds that besieged them and the stands and impromptu restaurants did a rushing business in solids and liquids.

Owing to one of the paddle wheels of the Columbian breaking, she was left in port, and consequently the forming of the procession was delayed for an hour and a half. The procession formed in the Market Square at 2:30 p.m. and marched through the principal streets to the driving park.

There were two lodges and lady Tame Blues in all about twenty lodges, with four bands and many banners, comprised the procession, which was over half a mile long.

The order of procession is as follows:

R. Woodcock, District Director of Education; Saginaw, Division Ceremonies (mounted on Upper Lodge, Lady True Blues in two carriages); Maidens City Lodge, No. 13, Belleville; Burleigh Lodge No. 2, P. A. P. B.; Stellis; Loyall Orange Lodge, No. 375; Butt's axe Drill Corps; Kingston; Victoria Lodge, No. 1, P. A. P. B.; Marshall; Carriage with speakers; King William; Victoria Lodge, No. 9, P. A. P. B.; Deseronto; Belleville Band; Moneyorder; Lodge No. 814; Loyall Orange Lodge, Northport; Ebenezer Local Orange Lodge, Camden; Mount Joy No. 16, P. A. P. B.; Hamburg Loyall Orange Lodge; Forest Mills; Loyall Orange Lodge, No. 974; Albert Loyall Orange Lodge, Picton; Picton Citizens Band; Premier Union; Loyall Orange Lodge; Deseronto Citizens Lodge.

The banners, flags and regalia attracted much attention and admiration, especially the mounted speeches and a large audience was soon circled around it, listening intently and applauding when some choice piece of rhetoric pleased them. Rev. G. H. Colquhoun, Deseronto, was chairman and in very few words, referred to the lateness of the hour and the consequent need of brevity, he said that the badge he wore and his presence there proved to them that he was in full sympathy with their cause and he was sure that they all felt with him that they had entered into a glorious heritage left by our fathers. In the presence of b. etern around him, one and true who were to address them, he would defer his remarks to some other suitable occasion.

Rev Mr Oliver, Tichborne, Frontenac county, opened the proceedings with prayer.

Brother Caughey, of Stella, Amherst Island, was the first speaker. In his opening remarks he referred to this being the 12th anniversary of the relief of Derry, and said that he had heard good impressions he had formed were very favorable. He complimented Victoria Lodge No. 9, on the great work of their great undertaking, and referred to the improved appearance of Orange parades. He said he was strongly in favor of 'Prentice Boys and Orange lodges, and made no patient with protestants who were anti-slavery and kindred societies. Why is it, he said, that the pope, the head of a foreign church, can send a letter to the dignitaries of our government through the channel of the post in regard to certain great questions in Canada? He has no right to do so. We should not recognize any foreign power in church or state in this country of ours.

He said that the people of Derry had a right to be independent, and that 'Prentice Boys, Orangemen and kindred societies from all over the country and even from the United States were present to take part in the day's proceedings.

Cricket.

A friendly match was played on the Deseronto Cricket Club grounds yesterday between Peterborough and Deseronto clubs. The day was all that was not expected, the temperature was very little with 13 in the forenoon. Peterborough made 212 with Rathburn not out. The highest score was 88, made by M. Hamilton, Deseronto, in the first innings, made 74; for the second, they went in under 100, for six wickets making a total of 137, against Peterborough's 221 in one innings. Peterborough's 221 in one innings. Peterborough, therefore, won the match by 10 runs. Peterborough were very good indeed and Deseronto fielding very poor. The next match which Deseronto will have will be against Belleville on the home grounds next week.

Musical Festival at Trenton.

Trenton was selected this year for the third annual festival of the Central Ontario Musical festival, and it was held there on Saturday afternoon, with a large number of people from the surrounding towns and country were assembled and they were ready for a great musical treat.

The bands present were the Deseronto Citizen band; the Prince of Wales Own Band, the Royal Guards, the Central Picton, Marmora, Yale, Bancroft, and Trenton Citizen's band. The bands assembled in the Market Square at 2 p.m., and after a programme by the combined band, in the evening, a procession was formed and marched out to Stanley park where the competition and a fine programme of sports took place. The Prince of Wales band of Kingston, were present and their band was well received.

On Tuesday afternoon another band, the 12th Battalion band, was present. Mr. Mallory, the conductor, and his wife, Mrs. Sarah Mallory, the wife of the complainant's husband and on her trying to separate them she was struck in the face by Brant when he was attempting to strike her husband. The Police Magistrate referred the case to the coroner, who adjourned the trial until tomorrow morning, to him to look into the law on the point raised by the Counsel for the defendant. The other side was present.

Literary Meeting.

The Epworth League held a literary meeting last Monday night, which was at once, interesting and profitable. A very excellent address by G. E. Denyer, "Scientific Improvements," was given by Miss Furell (read by Miss Phillips) on Canadian Literature, a song by Miss Archer, a recitation by Miss M. Boyce, a duet by Misses Crawford and Conroy, and several choruses made up the programme.

Society championed by Miss Sarah Ponik was the former, by the small sum of twenty cents.

C. M. B. A. AND CHURCH OF ST. VINCENT DE PAUL PICNIC.

The combination picnic of the C. M. B. A., Branch, No. 33 and the Church of St. Vincent de Paul's Picnic on Wednesday, August 16, 1898, was a combination in more senses of the word than one. It was a combination of good weather and a happy choice of goods, of good appetites and good things which go to make a picnic.

Some of good humor and pleasant amusements, of good fellows and jolly girls, of old and young, of rich and poor, of old duffers and of people who were determined to have a good time—and they had it.

Thompson's Point is certainly a splendid place for a picnic, the grove being excellent shade from the rays of the sun and there is always a cool breeze from the lake. Tasteful stands well laden with good things were to be seen different points, and a dancing platform with stand for the band was erected in the centre of the grove.

From an early hour in the morning the streets of Deseronto were thronged with people, wending their way to the grove, and the management are to be complimented on their arrangement of transportation facilities, they having arranged for the steamers Ella Rose and Armenia to carry passengers at the hours of 7.30, 8.15 p.m. and 2.15 a.m. The boat houses of course, were the largest number, but each trip was well patronized. The ferry boat Alberta was used as a landing stage at the grove. Between five and six o'clock the band was in full play, the girls in their pretty festivitons, 10 o'clock football match between C. M. B. A. and Match prints was played resulting in favor of the former by 1 to 0.

A sumptuous dinner was served on noon which was liberally patronized, and a dancing session followed for their adeptness in the culinary art.

The dinner was only rivalled by the supper, when with marvellous seductiveness the seductive plate ticklers disappeared as if by magic.

After dinner a short time was spent strolling around, boating etc., and the grand programme of sports was commenced and all the events were interesting and amusing.

On the conclusion of the sports Rev. Father Logan made a general and happy speech in which he referred to the enjoyable character of the day's outing. He expressed thanks to the C. M. B. A. and also others, many being members of other denominations, who had helped to make the day a success.

Mr. Paul picked such a successful address as to bring a hearty cheer.

In a few words he expressed the pleasure he had in introducing Mr. Killickay, Grand Organiser of the C. M. B. A.

W. P. Killickay, who is fluent and very pleasant speaker, succeeded in addressing the audience to the people for their excellent management and unanimity, and then clearly set forth the aims and objects of the association, which had been formed twenty-one years ago, and which had made a steady and decided growth, making good, growing and doing much good.

At the conclusion of his address he was received with a hearty vote of thanks.

Supper concluded, the dancing platform was cleared for action, and to the sweet strains of Dr. D. C. Thomas' band, the girls had a lovely time.

Home was reached at various times during the evening, and everybody wasteful, but satisfied and happy.

Next year the Tribune hopes to spend such another day with the C. M. B. A. and Church of St. Vincent de Paul.

The picnic was a grand success, and everyone returned home well pleased with the day's entertainment.

UNABLE TO WALK.

A DISTRESSING MALADY CURED BY THE USE OF PINK PILLS.

Right in our village is reported another of the remarkable cures that make Dr. Williams' Pink Pills so popular throughout the land. The case is that of Ed. Millar. The doctor interviewed her husband who was glad to relate the circumstances for publication that others might read and have a remedy put into their hands.

"I am a fool," says Mrs. Millar, "my wife was unable to walk without aid. Our physician diagnosed her case as coming from a spinal affection. Other doctors called the malady neuralgia, prevention. Whatever the trouble was she was weak and nervous. Her limbs had no strength and could not support her body. There also was a terrible weakness in her head. Six months ago she could not walk and at last, after trying many medicines, she began to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Improvement was noted in a few days, and now she has discontinued the medicine herself. Today she can walk without assistance. You can imagine her delight as well as my own. We owe her recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I recommend them to all who are nervous.

Mr. Millar is a part owner and manager of one of our lumber mills and is well known throughout the country.

Curious Italian Cigars.

A curious cigar seen in the Italian quarter of the city, where it is made and sold, is about 7½ inches in length and very slender, being not much bigger around than a pencil, and almost uniform in size for the greater part of its length. At the end that is placed in the mouth this cigar is made around a piece of straw an inch and a half in length, which projects about a quarter of an inch clear of the tobacco. When the cigar is made, a broom splint long enough to reach almost to the lighting end of the cigar is run through the straw, and the cigar is made around that. The broom splint is cut off so that a quarter or half an inch of it projects clear of the straw matting.

When the cigar is to be smoked, the broom splint is withdrawn. The opening through it where the splint was makes the cigar draw freely, and the section of straw at the slender end keeps the cigar open there. These cigars, made of strong, dark tobacco, are sold at a cent each.—New York Sun.

Commerce of the Philippines.

The commerce of these islands has been estimated by some authorities at $50,000,000 a year, but it is probably much greater, the chief exports being sugar, tobacco and hemp. Of Manila cigars the yearly product is several hundred millions, one factory alone employing 10,000 hands, and of Manila hemp the yearly product is probably 200,000 tons. One factory in Manila produces 40,000,000 cigarettes in a single year.

The imports are also of enormous value, and the United States sends the Philippines chiefly cotton oil and flour, while England, Germany and France sell them print cloths, white drilling hardware, canned goods, etc. There are other large towns in the islands, but most of the imports are landed at Manila and are shipped to them by local steamers. One company alone has 27 steamers engaged in local and coastwise trade, their ships ranging in size from 500 to 3,000 tons.—Isaac M. Elliott in Scribner's.

An Effective Pill Box.

Here is a good story of the author of "The Devil's Village": Hearing of Dr. Goldsmith's great success, a poor woman, who believed him to be a physician, once wrote to him begging him to prescribe for her husband, who had lost his appetite and was altogether in a very sad state. The kind hearted poet immediately went to see her, and after some talk with the man found him almost overwhelmed with sickness and poverty.

You shall hear from me in an instant," said the doctor on leaving, "and I will send you some pills which I am writing now."

Before the time came up Goldsmith's servant brought the poor woman a small box, which, on being opened, was found to contain 10 guineas, with the following directions: "To be used as necessary. Be patient and good heart."—Christian Work.

There is no friend like the old friend to make the fond heart bleed. When he comes with a suggestion air and his gleaming eyes beseech you that he knows you're gone to need him. And his name is good for his to treat you fairly. Oh! his friendliness and love, his sympathy with your woes. And the retentive memory of his voice. For the fool can scarce construe the meaning of his words, in his language. Or he would not so prettily rebuke those who are not friendly to him.

There is no friend like the old friend to make the fond heart sed.

As he turns away his head to see you not, Forgetting the favors from your hands that he has had.

"Tis so rich to see you dead upon the spot.

His blank and stony glare.

And the dignified demeanor of his back!

Ah, rest, beyond the days

Now dark Nemesis to call upon his track!

There is no friend like the old friend to make the fond heart rejoice.

When he grabs thy toll hard hand and hugs

It tightens, and the true ring in his well-rehearsed voice.

While his eyes are filled with mirthless delight.

For he greets you with a short.

Simulation all left.

A kindly friend, a lifelong friend, part gold.

And he holds you long and late

With a force as strong as fate.

The sense of faithful friendship grand and old.

was sorely disappointed when her search availed her nothing.

In bitter tears over her hard lot the girl retraced for the first time since she could remember to carry out the chores with the laundry.

Her sleep was restless and frequently broken by the sobs she could not control. At midnight she arose. Perhaps she would find a ladybug, after all, if she went out now in the moonlight and renewed her search among the bushes and the tall grass and the fence at the rear of the garden and the fence down stairs and out of the front door. Her hoot was a sound sleeper, and the girl felt safe from her molestations. She hurried down to the fence, the moon guiding her footsteps as it peeped out from underneath a cloud. Soon it shone full and white over the bushes, bringing into bold relief every leaf and branch, while the leaves themselves were silhouetted against the darker background. The dewdrops sparkled like diamonds, and tiny ants that crawled over them were distinctly visible. Suddenly Martha stopped.

There, a way up near the top of the fence, she saw a ladybug perched on a leaf which stood out straight and firm like a tray. It was as cool, as sound, and Martha had no trouble in breaking the stem and the stem and securing the coveted prize.

"Ladybug, ladybug, fly away!"

Biting my bean without delay."

cried the girl, hope, longing, anguish, expressed in her voice.

And then the devil's blood to utter route.

For what's the odds to him?"

Said the girl, "I'll tell him."

And the binding of my vest is worn and frayed?

With a friendship warm and true.

With a faithful sense of honor unbroken.

FINDING A LOVER.

"Ladybug, ladybug, fly away!"

Biting my bean without delay."

To lift the lady broad and make it stout.

Like a woman's bosom, underneath his presence

And the day.

And then the devil's blood to utter route.

For what's the odds to him?"

Said the girl, "I'll tell him."

And the binding of my vest is worn and frayed?

An Ontario Farmer Rescued by Prince's Celery Compound.

WELLS & RICHARDSON CO.,

Gentlemen—It is with very great pleasure that I testifying to the value of your great medicine, Prince's Celery Compound. For nearly two years I suffered from indigestion and kidney and liver troubles. After trying several medicines that did not effect a cure, I decided to try your compound. Before using it I was so low in health that I could not eat or sleep. I could lie in bed owing to pain in my back, and when I tried to get up I lay on my elbows and knees that I could not stand to obtain a slight degree of ease. Before I had fully taken one bottle of your compound I began to improve. I have now eaten heartily again and am in good spirits. I am a farmer and am now working everyday. I am a living witness to the worth of Prince's Celery Compound.

Yours sincerely,

G. J. SMYRE,

ROOM FOR A CHANGE.

The Canadian Baptist calls attention to the following stanza of a hymn sung at a recent interdenominational Sunday school anniversary held in Toronto:

"Yes, yes, yes, oh yes."

Jesus died for little ones like me.

John III-10 will show it.

That's the word and 'whoever' just means me.

The Baptist thinks there is room for revision and improvement in some hymns. It is not long since the following stanza was dropped from a hymnal because it was deemed not suitable for carillon or organ use, and the leading denominations in the world:

"For two are better than one."

For how can man be warm alone,

Or serve his God aright?"

—Kingston Whig.

The Effect of Wind on Lakes.

Attention has been called to the very remarkable effect of the wind on various inland bodies of water.

It is not long since the following stanza was dropped from a hymnal because it was deemed not suitable for carillon or organ use, and the leading denominations in the world:

"Good for the wind more than it could earn on the track.

In the hymn the word 'wind' is used in a general sense, for the reason that the buyers look to the individual rather than the general thing.

The Hymn Society makes it a point to ascertain the breeding as far as possible, however, of the horses which sell for a good price, so that owners and breeders can profit by the experience of others in learning the lines that produce the valuable stock.

In an illustration is reproduced a photograph of a horse sold on the open market recently at Kansas City for $380. This is not a sensational price, but it represents a figure at which breeders can afford to raise a horse and turn it at a profit. It should be turned in mind, too, that this price represents the figure paid by a dealer who bought the horse as an investment and who in turn

PRACTICAL HORSE BREEDING

Animals Available For Other Purposes

Than Racing.

The Horseman has gone to a great deal of expense to obtain data information which would enable him to judge the character of a horse that sells on the open market for other purposes than racing.

Every breeder is anxious to possess this knowledge because no matter how successful he may be in breeding reliable race horses he is sure to have some that are not suitable for this use or he may be fortunate enough to raise an animal that will bring more in the market for carriage or stock purposes than it could earn on the track.

In the book it is shown that the horse is disposed of as in the general market for racing, going but little as a general thing, for the reason that the buyers look to the individual rather than the general thing.

A CARRIAGE MAKER

Suffered ten years from weak heart action and nervousness.

Cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

No trade or profession is exempt from disease or derangement of the heart and nerves. The pressure of work and the mental worry are bound to produce serious consequences sooner or later.

Mr. Donald Campbell, the well-known carriage maker of Harriston, Ont., said:

"I have been troubled off and on for ten years with a weak heart and nervousness. Frequently my heart would palpitate and flutter with great violence, alarming me exceedingly. Often I had sharp pains in my heart, and could not sleep at night. I took a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and from those derived almost immediate benefit. They restored vigor to my nerves and strengthened my entire system, removing every symptom and pain, and enabling me to get restful, healthy sleep."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cure palpitation, throbbing, dizzy and faint spells, neuralgia, rheumatism, sleeplessness, weakness, female trouble, piles, constipation, etc. Price 50¢ a box for 3 or 4 boxes. All druggists, T. Milburn & Co., Toronto, Ont.

According to the "Annuary of Catholic Statistics" the number of Roman Catholics in the United States in 1890 was 7,000,000. In 1891 the total was 8,500,000. This, in view of enormous growth of population, indicates a remarkable falling off in the adherents of the Roman Catholic Church and the theory of Prof. Godwin Smith that the growth of ritualism in the Anglican church has tended to the increase of Romanism is not borne out.

doubtless turned him over at a respectable advance as soon as he found one of the many buyers who are always looking for a well turned animal. This horse came into the market with his breeding absolutely unknown and neither the signaller nor his consigner card had ever been put on him. That was practical enough to see at a glance that he had the style, conformation and finish of a horse that could be sold on any market at a good figure, and his breeding was not a matter for consideration. It is unfortunate, however, that his blood lines are a mystery, because if it was known what happy cross produced such satisfactory results others could follow these same lines with profit. Haphazard breeding of horses for carriage and coach purposes will result as disastrously as the same method applied to breeding for speed.

Little Horse Not Wanted.

For years the standard of the market for horses has been steadily advancing. It takes a better horse nowadays to be called a good one than ever before. He must have more quality, more style and, above all, more size than ever.

The last is especially important.

A horse must be of good size for his client to bring a good price. A little draft horse is not wanted, nor is a pony one nor than a small driver is not wanted.

If a man can afford to pay good prices for driving horses and is too small to work. If a man is breeding drivers to sell, he must get the size.

He cannot afford to risk getting extreme speed one time and losing the other things nine times. He must breed for quality, style and size, and all the speed he can add thereto will profit him. But a farmer cannot afford to breed small horses on the chance of getting speed, for too often he doesn't get it or doesn't know when he has it. Get them good and big, and they will sell.

—National Stockman.

The Same Old Problem.

Beyond question, the horses have been bred the year in and out of year since 1893. A good many of them have been bred to a very inferior class of horses, just as they were in the palmy days of horse breeding, when everything was bred and every stallion's book was full. Go into any locality in the country, and farmers will be found who are pursuing the same old plan—the plan that produced the劣等 horses that were marketed.

They are brought to market by the dealers who buy them, mostly learned it, but too many have failed to profit by their losses in the past. There will be no scarcity of scrub horses in the future, whatever may be the trade extended to France.

The Misses Jessie and Lorraine Smith after spending two weeks visiting their uncle, Rev. H. C. Allen, returned home a week ago Tuesday, accompanied by Miss Loretta Meagher, of Marysville.

The rain on Tuesday was welcomed. It cooked over twenty years of work which has sold out and will be succeeded by Mrs. Dean, of Peoria, Ill., who will take possession on Sept. 1st.

There were some electric storms passed over here on Saturday night of last week. The lightning was sharp and vivid and the rain fell in tufts for a few minutes. A very high wind accompanied the rain. Considerable damage was done in many localities. Rumor says a wedding soon.

CANADA'S BIG DISPLAY.
RESOURCES OF THE DOMINION EXTENSIVELY SHOWN AT OMARIA.

In the International Hall at the Trans-Mississippi Exposition is the Canadian pavilion. It occupies 5,000 feet of floor space and 6,000 feet of wall space, covered with the best the country can produce. It is an agricultural, mineral, forestry and dairy exhibit combined, and is one of the most interesting in the main entrance to the building. C. H. Myers, commissioner from the Dominion of Canada, is in charge, assisted by W. V. Bennett, the resident agent, and his daughter, Miss Jane Bennett.

The exhibit is viewed by ninety percent of the exposition visitors, a vast proportion of whom are astonished by the great showing of the country's resources.

When they get "No. 1 hard northern wheat" and are told the amount of thirty-eight to forty-five bushels per acre, all through the Dominion is the principal agricultural product shown.

Mr. Myers' booth is the second largest in the exposition, and his butter, Miss Jane Bennett.

Blood Poisoning at Napanee

Mr. A. S. Morgan, of Bracebridge, Ontario, writes: While working at the Gibbons' farm, near Napanee, Napanee, 1894, I met with an accident. I slipped and fell on my right hand. After a day or two my hand got so painful and looked so angry that I became alarmed and went to a physician. Physician said I had poison in my hand. I lance it and found that I had poison in my hand. Physician said I must get a bottle of Douglas' Egyptian Liniment and bind up my hand. I got the bottle and saturated my hand with it. The pain subsided and my hand became normal again. When I returned to the doctor he said the liniment had accomplished the work. I would come out of it all right, though. I thought at first that I had poison in my hand, but the physician said it was not poison. I must do all I can for myself. I know of four cases of blood poisoning in this vicinity that Egyptian Liniment cured.

Brown, Jones and Robinson are in a difficult position.

It is said the bird has flown.

A barn with its contents of hay and grain, belonging to Andrew V. Price, of Camden, Ont., was destroyed by fire on Friday last, caused by a spark from a threshing engine.

Sir Thomas Lipton's America cup challenger is to be run at the Shamrock Club by him, an Irish shipyard, and an Irishman (Charles Russell), has come over to make arrangements for the race. Sir Thomas is an Irishman himself. It will be indeed a great day for Ireland if the Shamrock wins, and a pretty good day if it doesn't. -Montreal Gazette.

52 BOILS

"Three years ago I was troubled with boils, and tried several remedies recommended by friends, but they were of no avail. I had FIFTY-TWO BOILS in all, and nothing seemed to give me relief until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. The first bottle I took made a complete cure and proved so very satisfactory that I have recommended B.B. to many of my friends who have used it with good results." A. J. MUSTARD, Hyder, Man.

Patient—Doctor, what does it mean when a man has sudden flashes of blood to his eyes? It makes him all over with a creeping sensation around his scalp?

Doctor—Well, it means that either he has an ague or else that he is going to propose.

This came to pass: The sky grew dark, A wondrous wind swept over the sea, And the waves were high, The sun sank low, And the winds like fiends in revelry, Then long above the crashing spars, The furious roar of storm & tempest, A gale that gave the stars— The stars— The stars— The stars— "Man overboard!"

The boatmen were born hardy, Their spirits came with glisten,

And braving furies in the wind

Forbade the ship in "stay?" to come,

And the waves were high, The rushing waters in its ears,

The man essayed to climb the steep,

The vast and yielding hemispheres,

And I saw he swam alone with death.

The vast and water-sloping seas,

How closely drawn to his quick-nip breath

Between his bloodless lips!

Again, to, like one who views the past,

He turned his head and for a last

Heartbeats, lingering look—

A son kissed stretch of yellow sand,

A dunting waste of sunlit sea,

That lately roared when wizard's word

Had sent the tempest to the deep,

A raged form there, dark and still,

Unmoved, innocent, forsooth, forgot,

Yet once it braved the tempest's will,

Create of green and blue and gold,

A PHILANTHROPIST.

"Whom do you think I saw driving with General Morton this morning?" asked Mrs. Morris of her great friend, the doctor's wife, as the two ladies were enjoying 5 o'clock tea and the general gossip of the parish together once again.

"Beatrix Harcourt," Mrs. Maynard answered promptly.

"Ah, you saw her, too, then. I must say I was surprised. It is well known that General Morton bears the character of being the fastest man in the neighborhood."

"I have long ceased to be surprised at anything Beatrix Harcourt does," the other lady answered significantly. "If Mr. Keurick does not mind, I do not see why any one else should trouble their heads about her eccentricities."

"Certainly not," Mrs. Morris agreed. "But really, Rose, she was laughing and talking in the most familiar manner, and looking more and more toward her until his face nearly touched hers."

"And that is our future vicar?" said Well, I shall take care my daughters do not see much of her." And Mrs. Maynard drew herself up with a kind of lofty indignation as some fresh visitors sounded at the door.

Beatrix literally flew to open it and found herself face to face with not the doctor, but with the vicar.

For the last month, ever since the gossip about General Morton—in fact, matters had been rather strained between the vicar and his fiancee, but all the neighbors were well aware of the state of the moment. Beatrix exclaimed: "You must not come in here, John, or touch me. Mrs. Carr has the fever!"

For a moment a look of keen anxiety darkened his grave blue eyes, and the next Mr. Keurick had folded the slight form close in his arms as he murmured brokenly, "Trixie, my own brave darling, would you have me a greater coward than yourself?"

With his arms still about her she told him that General Morton had driven her to the cottage in the morning, adding: "It was well he did, for I should have been an hour later, and Jennie and her mother were quite alone."

"Well, I shall call take my daughters off with a few words of good advice and a tract. Ah, no; she had always some plan or 'craze' as the good people of Hillchester called it, for their benefit on hand-clasps for the young girls, ambulance lectures, concerts, teas, what not.

For the conventionalities of society she cared not at all. She never attended the afternoon teas, therefore she heard no gossip. She was not even particularly about being in the fashion—in fact, the black sage dress she usually wore looked, from constant exposure to the weather, as if it had seen better days.

She had been known even to take the broom off the lame old crossing sweeper at the corner of the road and walk away in earnest until there was a passage fit for a queen to walk over.

And in spite of all the woes of Hillchester had asked Beatrix Harcourt to his wife. Well, as the leaders of society in Hillchester remarked with omnivorous sighs, wonders would never cease.

Nevertheless it must be confessed that John Keurick was in no very enviable fix, for in a week or two later he would be way somewhat slowly toward his ladylove's abode.

The gossip which had begun in Mrs. Maynard's drawing room had spread all over the parish, until a version of it, highly exaggerated and colored, had reached even the vicar's ears.

Beatrix soon discovered something was amiss, and after the first greetings were over she asked almost anxiously: "What is the matter, John? You do know well."

For a full minute Mr. Keurick did not answer. Instead he looked down at her as she stood with one arm resting upon his black coat sleeve, the sunlight falling with loving touch upon her fair hair, which was cut short (another point which met with the disfavor of the Hillchester matrons), and curled naturally all over her head like a child's.

"Trix, it is silly perhaps, but something I have heard today has troubled me greatly."

"Aloud now?" Trix asked gayly. "What fresh enmity am I to meet?" John?" and a sudden gravity crept into the sweet voice. "I thought you would have been to him in Beatrix Harcourt's place?"

But Beatrix, dangerous as her illness was, was not to be trifled with. In Hillchester was the scene of a greater rejoicing than had been known for many a long year, while the wonderful arches with their various devices, the glad faces of the people, the children with their flower buds baskets and the church bells ringing out their sweet messages far and wide all combined to show the love and respect which their vicar and his bride had so deservedly gained in the hearts of their people.—Madame.

In a moment the door opened, and a maid servant spoke a few words to the anxious watchers. Evidently it was good news, for with one accord they slowly passed the room to go away, and as they passed the two remaining women exclaimed in the broken voices which showed tears were not far off.

"Ah, well, if we have our best friend gone, and that's certain. There ain't many in this world like our Miss Beatrix. Bless her sweet face!"

Mrs. Maynard and Mrs. Morris walked on in silence. The lesson was learned, though it was bitter, for each felt, "What would these people have cared had I been in Beatrix Harcourt's place?"

twice this week. Is there anything else you want to ask me?"

"Yes, sir, I have a few questions. Mr. Keurick felt it was almost sacrilege with those poor eyes looking into his to breathe the doubts which now seemed to him so unworthy.

It was a month later, and Beatrix

Harcourt was walking swiftly along the dim, winding lane to the cottage. A small basket containing some delicacy for the sick woman she was going to see. The sound of wheels made her turn her head, and the next moment a deep, musical voice said pleasantly: "Miss Harcourt, are you again bound on the same journey?" Now do let me have the pleasure of giving you a lift.

Beatrix instinctively remonstrated, then she answered frankly: "Thank you so much. You know Jennie that poor crippled child I told you about. Well, I have had a note from her this morning to say her mother is very ill, and there is no one to do anything for her."

Gerald Morton looked admiringly down at the young face beside him.

He was the young man of Hillchester who had given Beatrix Harcourt the name of "the fair philanthropist," and it spoke well for the girl that even in the fast circle her name was never mentioned but with respect.

When Beatrix reached the little cottage, which lay close to a wood five miles from Hillchester, she found everything in a state of confusion. One glimmer at the poor woman showed her to be in a fit of fever and slightly delirious, while an ominous crimson rash was beginning to make its appearance on her face and neck.

THE DECLINE IN FREIGHT RATES

William Jennings Bryan, in the campaign of 1896, declared in one of his public speeches that there had been no reduction in freight rates since the time of the decline in the prices of other commodities.

The statement was immediately challenged and shown to be untrueful. The United States government (Department of Agriculture) has now issued an official and authoritative document which proves the fallacy of every carefully compiled document by H. T. Newcomer of the Bureau of Statistics. The decline in rates per ton per mile is shown to have been, as follows:

1867... 1,923 1877... 1,286 1887... 964
1869... 1,760 1880... 1,126 1888... 941
1870... 1,880 1880... 1,232 1890... 941
1871... 1,739 1881... 1,188 1891... 905
1872... 1,846 1882... 1,102 1892... 905
1873... 1,889 1883... 1,205 1893... 905
1874... 1,529 1884... 984 1894... 894
1875... 1,421 1885... 1,011 1895... 894
1876... 1,217 1886... 990 1896... 805

The decline in years therefore has been from about 2 cents to 8 mills—or of 1 cent per ton per mile. Even this does not represent the whole of the decline, because for the earlier years the records are incomplete and the roads on which the rates are not now ascertainable are those which with the least business had the greatest declines.

At this juncture the jury's verdict was that Dr. Hillier came to his death from an unknown cause. The doctors were
